LOVE and MARRIED LIFE by the noted author Idah McGlone Gibson

TELEGRAMS FROM HOME

Right after luncheon Helen and Bobby left and John and I began to think of the things we had left undone in our hurried marriage. "We telegraphed to my parents and to John's mother. I had already written my mother something about John, but I hadn't said anything to his mother. Replies came flashing back over the wire. My answering telegram read: "We welcome your husband as a son. Your happiness is our greatest joy. Mother and father." While John's said curtly: "Cannot understand your wife. Have you gone mad or is this your idea of a joke?" It was signed Anna Raines Gordon. John's face was a study as he read his mother's telegram. I could see he was very angry but he did not want to acknowledge it to me, neither did he want to show me the message. I made this reticence impossible, however, by handing him the telegram from my parents. Strange as it may seem I think John was quite as annoyed by my mother's telegram, as he was by the one his mother sent. The contrast was so great, especially as he had told me that his mother would welcome me with open arms.

For a long time he sat rather quietly and I knew he was working out something in his mind.

Many, many times since I have sat and my heart has grown cold as I have watched John's lips close tightly into that firm, thin, scarlet line and the gray look settle over his face. It is then that I know that whatever his decision, it will be as unchangeable as fate itself. Reason, caprice, tears, will have no effect on him.

At this time I did not know how the decision being made would affect me. I did not know that it would have a most important influence upon John's and my married life.

Although he had said nothing to me, I surmised, and afterwards learned, that John had planned that we should live with his mother. He realized from her wife that her consent to this arrangement would be difficult to obtain but I think her very objection to what he had done made him more determined than ever that we should all live together. If her wife had been couched in different language I am sure that in the first blush of our honeymoon I could have persuaded John to arrange for us to live alone.

That wife determined John to have his own way in the matter and, although he did not tell me, I knew then and there he decided that we should live in the old house, which it seems had been left him by his father. His mother's only claim to it being by John's courtesy.

If I had known what John was planning, I do not think I would have consented to live with Madame Gordon, as I have always called John's mother after reading her telegram. However, my wishes were not consulted. I was not made aware that such an arrangement was even contemplated, much less decided upon, until John, after carefully tearing both telegrams in two and putting them into the waste basket, said with assumed indifference:

"We should worry, dearest, over what our relatives think!"

I flamed in anger. I could not bear to have the affectionate telegram from my parents, breathing love and congratulations and good wishes for our happiness, categorized with the repellent, abusive wire from his mother, and I quickly drew away from the arms which would have enfolded me.

"Certainly not!" I cried, "my mother and father have given us nothing to worry about!"

"Oh, I presume they are just as mad as the matter is," was John's calm response. "Some folks are more diplomatic than others, that's all. And besides, your marriage will not affect your family quite as my marriage affects my mother's."

If we had but known if my marriage affected my family far more than it did his mother for the surprise of it worked havoc to my father's already overwrought nerves and to his system weakened by years of invalidism.

"My little boy had eczema on his face, and it caused itching and loss of sleep. The trouble began with red blotches, and his face got red, almost like raw beef, and then it broke out in blisters. The blisters broke and caused his face to become sore."

"Then I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. In a short time all traces of the eczema were gone." (Signed) Mrs. Z. Alexander, Box 35, Trout Creek, Mont., January 21, 1919.

HE CAN'T "SEE" RUTH

RUTH CHATTERTON

NEW YORK.—The charming Ruth Chatterton in "Moonlight and Honeysuckle" is courted by a congressman, to whom the playwright gave the name of "Hamill." But the real Congressman Hamill wouldn't stand for his name in a play, even as a suitor for Miss Ruth. The play goes on, but the author now is "Congressman Hammond."

Father went to bed never to leave it in life.

The first visit that John ever made to my home was when we were called upon to follow my dear father to his last resting place.

At that time, of course, neither of us knew of this and John was very angry. He continued:

"Any way, my mother will have to get over her 'peeve.' She should know by this time that when I make up my mind to do a thing I do it," and then with one of those sudden changes which has always made John most fascinating to me, he said gently:

"Why, darling, there is nothing that would have made me recede from the determination to possess you that swept over me the moment my eyes beheld you! I wanted you—and for me to want anything—is for me to get it."

"My dear, I always get what I want. Never try to balk me when once my decisions are made. It won't do any good," and John smiled and kissed me to soften the sting of his assurance. (Continued tomorrow.)

DIPLOMACY!

"A father should always be firm but kind and," began the presiding elder, "that's my mother, Parsons," in-dorsed Cap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge, Ark. "After I've knocked one of my kids down, in order to protect myself or get something done, as the case may be, I most generally give him a chew of tobacco, or something like that, to sort of saturate his feelings."

It was hard to crack that Fiume nut, but it's harder to get that Kernel D'Annunzio out.

Beautiful Women of Society, during the past seventy years have relied upon it for their distinguished appearance. The soft, refined, pearly white complexion it renders instantly, is always the source of flattering comment.

HAYS URGES PEACE TIME PATRIOTISM

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 7.—Will H. Hays, chairman of the national committee of the Republican party, speaking before the Republican Editorial Association of Illinois tonight, urged peace time patriotism which moves men to make their country's welfare their own business, in obtaining good government and solving present problems, which he termed largely economic. Exact justice for capital and labor and elimination of force were asked.

"He said in part: 'I repeat and shall continually declare that what we need in this country is not less politics, but more attention to politics. Politics is the science of government and what we need is more attention to the science of government.'

"Our difficulties are largely entire. The industrial problems in this country which at the moment seem to be overwhelming, can be, and I have implicit faith, will be solved in the way—by finding exact justice and enforcing it. It is simply a matter of Roosevelt's 'square deal'—exact justice for labor, exact justice for capital, and exact justice for the public, the 'third side of the triangle which must not be lost sight of. To that end we must develop a reasonable method for honest and efficient labor to acquire an interest in the business to which labor is expected to give its best efforts. Pending this development the equilibrium in production and wages must be established and there must be justice for all—exact justice, the justice of right and of reason, but not of force. Justice for all—and do not forget that the American people still know what exact justice is."

Republicans for Middle Ground.
"The Republican party from its inception has stood against undue federalization of industries and activities. There must be strong federal regulation but not federal ownership. We have always endeavored and still endeavor, to find the middle ground so well defined as between the anarchy of unregulated individualism and honest, efficient, of inefficient and widespread state ownership. We are against paternalism in government and we are against that form of pedagogical paternalism that has developed recently in this country. We are against autocracy as vigorously as we are against anarchy. Bolshevism and kaiserism are equally dangerous in industry as in government. We are against both."

"There shall be legislation passed as rapidly as possible, and when the complete Republican contr. necessary for full functioning shall have been brought about, there shall be legislation executed on all of these things I have mentioned, all moving in the direction of efficiency and economy, for the establishment of business in the country on a sound, safe and sane basis; the solution of the railroad problem; legislation for a better relation between labor and capital with justice for both; a law providing for a budget system for the country's own business, a method which should have been adopted long ago—and it is interesting to note that in the message of the chief executive last given to congress he omitted any mention of a budget system. There shall be legislation for the development of trade, the improvement of our diplomatic service, the solution of our shipping problem that we may have a merchant marine adequate to meet the development of world trade, the development of our position on international relations, and still other innumerable problems—all incident to the readjustment which is imminent."

"Let not our great accomplishments in war be marred by our inability to order our own affairs. Mere agitation and mere motion are not progress. The vicious circle is not the shortest distance between honest effort and highest reward. Remember that one man is only better than another when he does better. Give every well behaved man his equality of opportunity, and require from him his full measure of accountability. Live and let live and as you live and help live, find always exact justice and enforce it."

HOUDINI DECLARES IT IMPOSSIBLE TO SPEAK TO DEAD

Without reflecting upon those who honestly believe in the power of the dead to speak with the living, Houdini, the famous handcuff king and magician, starring in "The Grim Game," which will be shown at the Alhambra theatre as a Paramount-Aftercraft picture tomorrow, declares that he does not believe any of the demonstrations of so-called spiritualist mediums are genuine.

"I take issue absolutely with Sir George Deth, Sir Oliver Lodge, Sir Wheeler Wilcox, and others who claim to have conversed with the dead. Great scientists have been deceived since time immemorial by clever tricksters. I have been present at many so-called seances and not one of them could not be duplicated by a clever magician. Harry Kellar, the greatest authority on magic who ever lived, agrees with me."

HOUDINI IN SUPER-THRILLER

Houdini, the famous handcuff king, is a star reported in "The Grim Game," his Paramount-Aftercraft picture which will be shown at the Alhambra theatre tomorrow. The death-defying experiences which he undergoes in order to secure a "scoop" for his paper effectively discourage anyone in the audience from wishing to enter the newspaper business. All speed limits for thrills are exceeded in this picture, which discloses Houdini as the hero of an entertaining mystery melodrama. It is well worth seeing and contains a smashing climax that is unforgettable.

Hero of "The Grim Game" Is Expert at Ledgerdmain

Every public character is said to have a hobby. In the case of Houdini the famous handcuff king, who is star of "The Grim Game," a Paramount-Aftercraft picture to be shown at the Alhambra theatre tomorrow, it is magic. Though he devotes his art chiefly to self-liberating feats and big illusions, Houdini is an expert at all kinds of ledgerdmain. He says that magic is an obsession, like golf. Once it "gets" a man, it never leaves him.

Houdini has defied shackles and iron bars in all parts of the world. He exhibits his most death-defying stunts in "The Grim Game," which is a mystery story developed along thrilling lines and leading up to what is claimed to be the most sensational climax ever screened. A notable cast, supports the famous self-liberator, including Ann Forrest, Tully Marshall, Thomas Jefferson, Augustus Phillips and Arthur Hoyt.

Farmers Name Delegate

SALT LAKE, Nov. 7.—John T. Burton of Garland has been appointed to represent the Utah State Farm bureau at the national meeting of state farm organizations to be held in Chicago November 12 and 13 for the purpose of organizing the American Farm Bureau Federation. Mr. Burton was chosen at a meeting of the executive committee of the Utah farm bureau, held last night in the offices of J. Edward Taylor, commercial agent.

The Utah delegate will have full power to act for the Utah association at the meeting. He will leave within a few days for Chicago.

The American Farm Bureau Federation is to be organized for the purpose of correlating and strengthening the work of the state farm bureau federations and to represent and protect the business and economic interests of agriculture. It is to be formed to represent the farmers of the entire nation in matters affecting their welfare, according to notices of the meeting which have reached the Utah State Farm Bureau.

A CHEERFUL RECOMMENDATION.
"They should be in every traveling man's grip," writes George Jenner, 416 Foley street, San Antonio, Tex., of Lober Cathartic Tablets. "They are the best laxative I have taken and I cheerfully recommend them to anyone suffering with constipation or biliousness." They thoroughly cleanse the bowels, sweeten the stomach and benefit the liver. They correct indigestion, bad breath, floating gas, coated tongue and other results of sluggish bowels. WILHELM'S PHYSICIAN QUILTS AMERONGEN
AMERONGEN, Holland, Oct. 20.—(By the Associated Press).—The suite of the former German emperor at Amerongen has been reduced by five persons as a result of the departure recently for Berlin of his private physician, Dr. Foerster and family, who had been at Amerongen many months. It is the gossip of the village that Dr. Foerster found it impossible to support his family on the meagre salary, in German marks, paid by the former emperor, and that he has returned to general practice in Berlin.

A military surgeon, Dr. Jenner, has arrived from Berlin to serve temporarily at Benthick castle.

For First Time in Two Years Givens Is Able to Digest Any Kind of Food.

"If anybody had told me that there was any medicine that would help me as Tanlac has, I would have laughed at them," said H. M. Givens, who lives at Anaheim, Cal., while in Los Angeles the other day.

Mr. Givens is one of the most prominent men in his section, and has been very successful in operating a large orange grove, which he owns.

Continuing, he said, "this medicine is worth its weight in gold, and if the price of it was twenty-five dollars a bottle I would buy it just the same. I began to suffer from stomach trouble about three years ago, and although I had treatment from the best specialists in the country, and took many different kinds of medicine, my condition gradually grew worse all the time. I had reached the point where I could retain but very little of what I ate and often had bad cramping spells. Then my nerves went back on me, and such a thing as a good night's sleep was out of the question with me. I finally had to give up trying to attend to any business, and came to Los Angeles thinking some of the specialists here might help me. I had my stomach washed out numbers of times, but it didn't do me any good at all, and I just got so weak and run down that I was hardly able to go to all."

"One night about three or four weeks ago while looking over the paper, I noticed a statement about Tanlac and restore me to health. My wife called after reading this statement, I asked my wife to order me a bottle of this medicine. Well, I commenced taking Tanlac that very night, and sir, by the time I had finished that first bottle I knew that I had at last found a medicine that would overcome my troubles and restore me to health. My wife could hardly believe me when I told her that I was hungry and wanted something substantial to eat, and her surprise was even greater when she saw that I could retain what I ate and that I didn't show any signs of suffering afterwards. I just stuck to Tanlac, and continued to improve until I am now feeling like a different man altogether. Why, I actually sat down and ate a big steak yesterday, and that is something I haven't dared do for more than two years. I am getting stronger every day, and gaining in weight right along. My appetite is getting better all the time, and I just eat anything that comes to hand, and what I eat doesn't hurt me at all. Oh, I tell you it's wonderful, and my wife and I are so happy over my great improvement that we have sent the good news broadcast to all our friends and relatives. Tanlac is one medicine that will do all they say it will do, and I am more than glad to recommend it to everybody."

Tanlac is sold in Ogden by A. R. McIntyre Drug Co. Two busy stores.—Advertisement.
